

A compound inequality is an inequality that contains two inequality symbols.

- A compound inequality has three parts: a left side, a middle part, and a right side.

To solve a compound inequality, you must isolate the middle part (get the variable by itself). You solve a compound inequality just like you would solve an equation but you start from the middle part.

Example 3: Solve each compound inequality.